Red Hat Enterprise Linux- Disaster Recovery

Pricing policy for Disaster Recovery is as follows:

- Hot Backups -- 100% regular subscription price
- Warm Backups -- 50% regular subscription price
- Cold Backups -- 0% regular subscription price

Definitions:

- Hot Backups -- Server is frequently turned on and ready to move into production mode immediately. This is typically what "failovers" do within a cluster.
- Warm Backups -- Server is turned on periodically to receive backups of data from the production servers. For example, warm backups are used in mirroring, replication, and log-shipping scenarios.
- Cold Backups -- Server has software installed and configured, but then is turned off until the disaster occurs or for periodic disaster recovery procedure tests. For RHEL this means that we allow the customer to preload the bits as a courtesy. However, RHN can't be used to update the system until the disaster happens. Then, the paid subscription on the failed machine
